Attached please find our Inventory List of Notable and Possible Heritage Trees in the McLoughlin Neighborhood. We organized our study by procuring a map of our neighborhood, then traveling down all the named streets, then the numbered streets, with an eye finely tuned to looking at trees. We met many neighbors and listened to many stories, learning much about our neighborhood! It was time-consuming and fun. We found many, what is called in ornamental horticulture lingo, 'plants out of place'. We found diseased and neglected, even mutilated trees. Thankfully we also found some very well-cared for mature trees. Pamela's expertise in tree ID was crucial and Francesca's persistence kept us moving along. Pete Walter gave us good feedback and some historical background.

We realize that not all these trees can be considered Heritage Trees. We also acknowledge there may be some homeowners who don't care to participate in an organized process to articulate better together what our trees mean to us, and how we can continue forward cultivating a tree canopy that is good for our neighborhood and the birds and bees, too. We met several neighbors who were interested in the Heritage Tree Program, but felt that the current program provides no incentive for them to participate.

At this point, we wonder if it would be a good idea to work together to design a survey that can provide us more information about what these property owners know and value about their trees; this could be helpful in both designing future progress in our city's horticultural awareness and developing practical applications for cultivating and maintaining our tree canopy, especially with our young people.

We are assuming each one of you is fully educated about what research tells us about the importance of trees in our daily lives. For instance, even though Waterboard Park is full of ivy and other invasive plant material, not to mention the human waste and a path that is broken down and often slippery on the rainy days, there is a certain quietude being in that space that can't be experienced in any other part of our neighborhood.

As 'private citizens', we would like to offer our energy, skills and passion to help keep nature in our neighborhoods, toward building our Heritage Tree Program, and to cultivate better awareness, knowledge, care and maintenance on the part of our citizenry as we attempt to move forward without compromising our need for the peace and satisfaction that comes from being able to hear the bird song at the top of the trees and little chirping in our gardens. We welcome your thoughts and discussion. Our city needs your leadership and support.

Sincerely,

Tree Committee
